

Unravel job safety.

It's no puzzle - Understanding your job as a teen is one way to ensure your next job is a safe one.

Safety is an issue.

One of the many things to consider as a teen when choosing a job is how safe it is.

But is it true?

Yes. Teens are often injured on the job due to unsafe equipment or stressful conditions. Many teens do not receive adequate safety training and supervision.

What can I do?

It is important to find out about hazards your job might have, your rights on the job, and how you can protect yourself.

Things to watch out for*

In a job, your rights are the most important of all. You have a right to a healthful and safe workplace. However, watch out for things such toxic chemicals, slippery floors, and equipment that requires training prior before use.

* Questions?

If you want like to see more information or have any questions, head on to "<http://www.youngworkers.org>" for more additional information and resources.